

CITY PLANNING FOR SPRING STREET WORK

Marion's 50 Miles of Unpaved
Thoroughfares To Be Scraped and Rolled

Work of getting the city's 50 miles of dirt roads into condition for the summer will be resumed Wednesday morning, provided there is no more rain, it was announced by Superintendent of Streets William Honaker, yesterday afternoon. The work, which was started two weeks ago, was halted by the rain after several of the streets had been scraped and rolled.

Cheney, upon which work was being done at the time rain interfered, will be finished first. Other streets will be taken in order, the superintendent said.

A number of hard freezes during the winter, followed by thawing, have loosened up the roads and with the con-ing of rain and heavy traffic, the thoroughfares have been badly cut up.

Wants Heavier Scraper
Bids for a new road scraper of a heavier type than that now in use have been asked for by Service Director
Benedict and it is believed that with the heavier scraper and the road roller purchased by the city last year, the work of getting the streets into condition will progress rapidly.

Superintendent Honaker also announced that the up-town street cleaners, who work during the spring and summer, will go on duty Monday night. These men go to work late at night after traffic has become lighter and sweep and clean the up-town streets. Because of the limited amount of money provided for this purpose, the men are not put to work earlier in the year.

City and County Dispute Over Jail Board Contract Comes to Official Close

Document Fixing Rate for City Prisoners at 25 Cents a Meal Is Signed by Mayor; City To Pay Doctors' Bills

After several over rates to be charged to the city prisoners at the jail, a contract fixing a rate of charges was officially signed by Mayor Earl Hazen.

It stipulates that the city shall pay 25 cents for each meal served to its prisoners instead of a straight charge of 75 cents a day, regardless of the number of meals furnished, as was originally demanded by the county.

When first presented to city council by the county commissioners the contract provided for the 75 cents a day rate.

Council refused to accept the contract and efforts were being made to find quarters for prisoners in the county seats of adjoining counties when the county commissioners signified their willingness to reconsider the contract.

Agreement Reached

Following a conference between Mayor Hazen, Safety Director Strayer and the county commissioners last week, it was announced that a satisfactory agreement had been reached.

The nature of the agreement, however, was not announced until the contract had been signed by Mayor Hazen yesterday.

Other phases of the contract remain unchanged. The city will pay 25 cents for each meal and will pay for medical attention received by the prisoners, while the county will provide a shave once a week and a hair cut every two weeks for the male prisoners. No provisions are made for cutting the hair of the female prisoners. The county also reserves the right to refuse to accept any prisoner who is ill from any contagious or infectious disease.

DANDRUFF

A Sure Way to End It

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely, and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arcon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arcon at any drug store and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy never fails.

MUNICIPAL COURT RECEIPTS DECLINE

Collections Drop in March Although Number of Arrests Exceeds February Record

Municipal court receipts for the month of March hit the lowest level of the year, according to a report for the month submitted by Deputy Clerk Madeline Cahill today.

The total collections were $854.89, of which $125 was paid to the county as fines in state cases. Fines and costs in criminal cases amounted to $193.67 and in civil cases, $236.02.

The receipts of the court were less in March in spite of the fact that there were 12 more arrests during the month than in February. Seventy-two arrests were made during March with intoxication leading in the case, 21 inelated prisoners having fallen into the hands of the police during the month.

There were six arrests on petit larceny charges, most of these being coal thefts. There were also four for illegal possession of intoxicating liquor, two for selling, three for driving while intoxicated and one for horse stealing.

Buick Employee Finds Quick Relief

Nothing Ever Before So Wonderful SYKODONER IS THE ANSWER AS USUAL

"I feel it my solemn duty toward suffering humanity, to impart the following glorious news to all," said Mr. Frank Dawson, 677 Davis St., Marion, in a sworn statement. "I have worked for the Marion Buick Garage for nearly ten years. About four months ago my health broke down completely. I suffered with blood poisoning. My bladder was in such a bad shape that I had to use a catheter. Constipation caused me such excruciating pains, that morphine and belladonna had to be resorted to for relief. I was a nervous wreck. Kidneys were most affected; digestion was faulty. Four months I was laid up, with a physician calling once or twice a day. The expense was costing me many hundreds of dollars, with no sign of relief. Until a friend kindly recommended the Sykodoner System. I phoned for demonstration. The very next morning I arose, and had been on my feet ever since. It was the most marvelous thing I ever before saw in all my life. And what it has done for me, I would not take ten thousand dollars—no, not even twice that much—for what is money worth, when you do not have good health? I cannot say too much for the kindness shown me, and I shall never cease thanking them for it. I am now again able to go to work, thank the Lord—instead of having to lie on the flat of my back, as I had been compelled to do for so long, while serum was injected into my veins, all to no avail. I recovered without the use of drugs, serum, surgery, manipulations, or even faith, as the Sykodoner System requires neither. I feel so very much enthused over this new and different form of health giving system, that I welcome all sufferers to call or write to me for further information. For only God knows how I suffered, and how, how thankful I am for what was done for me, in so short a time, at so little cost. Words cannot describe it."

Willis is Laid to Rest in Oak Grove Cemetery

in the greatest esteem. This is shown by the attitude of the minority party. They are at this moment his eulogists. After a life filled with the fruits of what the world called success and at the end of what might be called a perfect day at home among friends and those who knew him as a boy and loved him and aspired for him, to lay down his life's burden without a pain of mind or body were it mine to choose the occasion that would be my choice.

Ralph D. Cole said: The career of Frank B. Willis is the grand epic of American nobility. Born on a farm, nurtured in a home where the Christian religion inspired the domestic circle, educated in the public schools, taught school, attended college, a professor in law, admitted to the bar, member of State Legislature, United States congressman, governor of Ohio, and United States senator. Study the lives of American immortals, compare their career with his, and behold how perfect the climax—the presidency of the United States!

In the analysis of his character we find body, mind and heart perfectly balanced. His commanding presence was but counterpart to his high intellectual and moral endowments. The dominant characteristic of Senator Willis was his humanness. He loved his fellowmen and sought to serve them. He was natural. He despised hypocrisy. He possessed intellectual as well as moral integrity. He was dignified; not the sham pretense of selfish exclusion, but a noble simplicity, the unfeigned mark of genuine greatness; not a puppet of conventions, but the natural conduct of a man endowed with a wealth of human sympathy and understanding. He was loyal to his home, his state and nation. He was an ardent patriot. He was loyal to his friends. Disloyalty he abhorred. Honest criticism he coveted.

Faith in People

The public life of Senator Willis covered a period of 30 years. He did what he thought was right as God gave him to see the light. On all questions in volving a moral principle he was almost immovably centered in his high purposes, he defied all danger and battled every adversary. He threw his lance full and fair in the face of public wrong, and so fighting he fell. As a soldier falls in battle, so fell he in action.

He had faith in free institutions, and in the capacity of the people for self-government, enlightened by the truth. The people of Ohio reciprocated that trust and had faith in him, as he held the greatest and most loyal personal following of any Ohio leader since William McKinley.

He believed that a Democracy could best be preserved and its administration most efficiently served through the agency of political parties. He advocated principles as the foundation of political faith, and not personalities. In his last public address, with what now appears as prophetic vision, with most impressive solemnity, he declared: "Men pass on, but principles endure."

Senator Willis was a man of God—as Lincoln was in deep devotion true to God, so Willis had faith in a Divine Providence that determines destinies of nations and guides in the affairs of men.

Better than all wealth, better than all power, better than all position to have the character, courage and manhood of Frank B. Willis.

C. A. Jones, secretary to Senator Willis said:

"What I say represents the viewpoint which comes from a relationship of 14 years, in seven of which we have been together almost every day; in all hours of the day and in all hours of the night; in the hours of deepest depression and in the hours of greatest victory."

Never Had Servant

"First of all I want to say that this man who served supremely, never had a servant. One of the first things he said to me after I became his secretary in 1921 was this: 'You will see here in Washington many people who have become mere clerks, who because they are in a sense an employee feel that they can not express to the man with whom they work their real thoughts. I want you to understand that what I ask of you is service and not subservience. Because I am a senator and you are my secretary does not mean that I shall always be right. I shall sometimes be wrong. I want you to counsel with me when you think I am. When the time comes that you can't tell me that you think I am wrong, then I do not want you to be at all. And this was the spirit in which he always carried on. He himself gave service, so much so that he never thought of his subordinates as being at all inferior to him in his relationship of life. He did not believe in and he did not practice the petty arts of politics which so often are condemned. I never knew him to make a decision on an important question upon any other basis than that which was for the best interests, as he saw them, of the people represented. When he voted for the adjusted compensation there were upon his desk 14,077 telegrams, many of them from the greatest people of this state, threatening him with political extinction; but he calmly said he had promised the soldier boys of Ohio and he meant to carry out his word. Moreover he thought the thing he was doing was the right thing to do. He offered the famous Newberry resolution, not simply because he wanted to seat Senator Newberry, but because he wanted to do justice to a man whom he believed was being denied. In the quiet of his study he decided the right thing to do and no ulterior objection would ever him from his decision. If you had the facts you could easily convince him, but you must have the facts if you expected to get anywhere in the presentation of important matters to him."

they work their real thoughts. I want you to understand that what I ask of you is service and not subservience. Because I am a senator and you are my secretary does not mean that I shall always be right. I shall sometimes be wrong. I want you to counsel with me when you think I am. When the time comes that you can't tell me that you think I am wrong, then I do not want you to be at all. And this was the spirit in which he always carried on. He himself gave service, so much so that he never thought of his subordinates as being at all inferior to him in his relationship of life. He did not believe in and he did not practice the petty arts of politics which so often are condemned. I never knew him to make a decision on an important question upon any other basis than that which was for the best interests, as he saw them, of the people represented. When he voted for the adjusted compensation there were upon his desk 14,077 telegrams, many of them from the greatest people of this state, threatening him with political extinction; but he calmly said he had promised the soldier boys of Ohio and he meant to carry out his word. Moreover he thought the thing he was doing was the right thing to do. He offered the famous Newberry resolution, not simply because he wanted to seat Senator Newberry, but because he wanted to do justice to a man whom he believed was being denied. The German police ban on Mr. Ford's new model having been lifted, it's pretty safe to predict that the Germans will soon be on the jump again.

Both the Thompson and the Deane factions are charging each other with being dry. Being dry must be looked upon up in Chicago as a disgrace.

"More harm than good," says a writer, "has come from reading biographies of successful business men." But would such be the result if ninety-nine per cent. of them were not hokum?

We understand, of course, why the astronomers of the world are making an investigation to determine the unidentified influence which has pulled the planets, Saturn, Uranus and Neptune, from their usual orbits, for that's a part of their business, but what we can't understand is how the United States senate ever let them beat it to the investigation.

Dean Inge says that "most politicians keep principles only as a horse dealer keeps horses." Possibly the dean's right about it, but what business had he in springing a thing like that in a presidential year?

"The great art America has developed," says James J. Davis, secretary of labor, "is the art of wiping the sweat from the laborer's brow, the art of lifting from his back the burdens that have weighed him down through countless ages." About the only people who will question this are the agitators whose burden lifting has always been of the theoretical kind.

It must make Texans feel a bit cheap over the way they bragged about their thirty-one-year-old today until Oklahoma announced the finding of a real patriarch of 300,000 years, or such a matter.

Peggy Joyce, with her 200-carat, $450,000 blue diamond and the insurance company detective guarding it, has arrived in Paris and announces that her next marriage will be of the companionate variety. It was our impression that the preceding ones were somewhat along a limitation line.

New South Wales is to vote on prohibition next September and a great crusade is on to make the whole of Great Britain dry. It's hardly a possibility of the near future, but all the signs point, not only to a dry Great Britain, but also to an entire dry world.

Let us hope that there is nothing in the report that Colonel Lindbergh will attempt a flight across the Pacific. To attempt such a flight, in the present development of the aeroplane, would be a mistake even though he succeeded in making it. It would simply give impetus to other attempts by less able and experienced fliers.

Regarding Heavy Eating.

A Washington special despatch to a Chicago paper, yesterday, set out that the unexpected passing of Senator Frank B. Willis added another "to the list of national figures cut down in recent years and who, it is said, fell victims of their own gastronomic habits."

"Among those whose names came quickly to mind," the despatch went on to say, "are President Harding and William Jennings Bryan, both famed, as was Senator Willis, for their enormous appetites, and who, like him, were stricken with apoplexy."

This Washington correspondent may be right regarding the dietary habits of Senator Willis. We haven't any knowledge in the matter. He may be right, also, in the case of Colonel Bryan. We have reason to know that the colonel, when in his forties, was a very heavy eater. But he is certainly greatly in error in holding that Mr. Harding had an enormous appetite, or was a hearty eater. As a matter of fact, Mr. Harding was an exceptionally light eater. We knew him very intimately for almost forty years, and never could understand how one of his physique could sustain himself on so little in the way of foodstuffs.

At social affairs, we have seen him eat heartily, and, knowing him as we did, we attributed it more to a desire to pay respect to viands served by his hostesses than to the promptings of his appetite, but in his own home he ate sparingly. Day after day we have seen him eat an apple or a pear and drink a couple of glasses of water as a luncheon. Frequently, he would eat a dish of berries and a water or two, with a couple of glasses of water, for his noon-time meal. This held good in the White House. We have seen him eat nothing more than a slice of melon, and he ate sparingly at the dinner hour as well.

If the purpose of the writer of the Washington special was to bring out the danger of overeating, he erred in citing the case of the late President Harding, for the latter, as those who knew him best well know, was unusually temperate in his eating. As a matter of fact, he ate far less than the average man, although he enjoyed what he did eat greatly.

Traffic Rights at Intersections.

It might prove profitable were every motorist to give a little study to an opinion rendered by the supreme court of Ohio, last week, in cases which went up from Miami and Cuyahoga counties, regarding the rights of motorists at street and highway intersections.

The court held that the situation giving the motorist on a main thoroughfare the right-of-way applies only where two machines are approaching the crossing from different directions so nearly at the same time and at such rates of speed within lawful limits that, if each proceeds without regard to the other, a collision is reasonably to be expected. In a case such as this, the motorist on the main thoroughfare has the right-of-way.

"Where the driver of a vehicle upon an intersecting highway reaches a main thoroughfare," the court held, "it is his duty to look both to the right and left and if another vehicle is approaching the intersection on the main thoroughfare, it is his duty to wait until the other vehicle has passed before entering the intersection."

If the court stopped at this point it would have placed every obligation of care on the driver of the vehicle approaching a main highway and given every right to the driver traveling along the main highway, an advantage to the latter by which some drivers might be inclined to profit to the hardship of the driver on the intersecting roadway. But it went further to point out that the driver on the main highway also has an obligation. It held that, even though a motorist driving on a main highway has the right-of-way, he must use caution in approaching an intersecting road.

In a word, no matter if the driver on the main highway has the right-of-way, he is liable for such damages as may occur if he drives carelessly, or recklessly, and doesn't use caution to see that he doesn't strike some vehicle which may come onto the highway from an intersecting road, which is not only good law, but also good sense. The driver on the main highway hasn't any right over the driver on any other highway save that which is given him alike for his own protection and the protection of the driver on the intersecting highway.

James Jackson Tunney says: "There is nothing I can say of 'Hamlet' that has not already been said." That's the stuff! Stick to the fighting game, Gene. There's more money in it, and it's possible that in it you'll feel far more at home.

John Drukwater says it's a good thing to encourage the reading of poetry, but he isn't sure that it's a good thing to encourage the writing of it. There's another phase of the thing, John. There's never any need of encouraging the writing of it. Both the rarely exceptional person who can write poetry and the multitudes who only think they can will persevere without even a suspicion of encouragement.

Realizing that their immunity would end therewith, six Communist deputies didn't wait for the dissolution of the reichstag, but fled from Germany to escape arrest for high treason. The lot of the red no longer is just exactly what might be termed a happy one.

A Pittsburgh wire says the progressive element of the United Mine Workers of America is planning to oust Lewis as president of that organization. If progressive miners are anything like the "progressive" politicians, as we take them to be from the fact that they are against the rule of the duly-elected authorities of the organization, it would come far nearer the truth to call them radicals of the most pronounced type.

George S. Oetle, director of the South African government bureau, told a gathering of New Yorkers that most of the so-called big game hunters shot down lions and other wild animals as the animals stood in awe, "as though charmed" by the noise of the motors of the automobiles of the hunters which were left running by the alleged sportsmen. In a word, the most of the big-game hunters are not so much hunters as slaughterers and mighty poor sports.

Washington scientists hold that the toad found alive near Frederick, Oklahoma, in the same strata of clay that yielded relics of the glacial age of probably 300,000 years ago must have slipped through a fissure in the ridge strata under which it was found, from which we assume that the toad must have slipped down with it as it descended through the fissure.

Official reports received by the British government are to the effect that the food crisis in Russia is fully as serious as that of 1921 and that the soviet commissars have absolutely lost their grip on the situation. The soviet government did fairly well so long as it could exist on its stealings, but the time has come when there is nothing left to steal.

Vagrant Verse.

THE FAIRY TIFER.

Weary is the way, and I'm a weary man to-night:

Ah, the fairy pipers that awoke me long ago
 When the mist began to shiver at the coming of the light.

And the wind was in the heather soft and low,
 The gray hills flushed to purple and the east was like a rose.

They called me to the long road with piping shrill and clear:
 Rest and rust and full content the mortal never knows.

Who may once the fairy pipers chance to hear,
 Over hill and valley he must follow till he fall:
 Jeweled gossamers at dawn that shone about his feet,
 Love and wealth and honor, he must break and leave them all.

When the fairy music calls him shrill and sweet,
 Shepherds on the quiet hills, fishers by the stream,
 Light and life and laughter where the busy city hums,
 Grow and dwindle round him faint as figures in a dream.

Still the music calls him and he comes,
 Friends and comrades round me I went forth upon my quest.

LOOKING A GIFT HORSE IN THE MOUTH.

Parasites in Drinking Water.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

We think of disease as being caused by a germ or some other invisible or microscopic agent. As a matter of fact, worms, some of them of considerable size, may find their way into the human body.

They are as much out of place here as a rattlesnake would be in a dwelling-house. But snakes sometimes do get into primitive homes.

There are many varieties of animal parasites that find their way into man's intestinal tract. The most common of these is the ordinary tapeworm, growing to the length of twenty or thirty feet. Then there are intestinal worms, known as thread worms or round worms. A most unpleasant visitor is the trichina, a worm that finds its way right into the muscle tissue.

Today I wish to speak particularly of a parasite which is active in tropical or semitropical countries. This form of animal life is not satisfied to enter the intestinal canal of its victim. It actually penetrates the blood vessel wall and circulates in the blood itself.

I refer to a worm called filaria sanguinis hominis. This name indicates the nature of the animal—the thread worm of the blood of man.

There are several forms. One is the filaria bancrofti. This is a long thin organism, white in color, looking not unlike a horse hair. It may be from an inch to three inches long.

This type is likely to get into the lymphatic glands. From the lymph it gets into the blood.

Now a strange thing happens. There is one form that is found in the blood at night only. Another and different form is found in the blood in daytime.

Then there is a third form, a day and night worker. The thing that caused me to write this article is a letter just received from Porto Rico. A gentleman wrote me regarding his wife.

She picked up this parasite in the Virgin Islands where she lived four years. The poor woman has been awfully ill during the past year.

The letter states that one leg is particularly affected. It is considerably swollen, red and painful.

Another symptom quite commonly observed in filariasis, as the disease is called, is milkiness of the urine. Instead of being white, it may be blood streaked.

There is still another form of this parasite, known as "guinea-worm." Some writers think the plague of fiery serpents sent to a lot of children of Israel was an attack of these worms.

I assume this is the form of parasite which has attacked my Porto Rico friend. The worm has found its way into the leg.

It is not unusual for it to get into the eyelid, the tongue, the arm, or the body itself. Painful swellings follow the invasion.

These parasites get into the system through the drinking water usually. This is another reason for making sure the water we drink is uncontaminated, boiled if there is any doubt.

I wish I could recommend some sure cure for the ailment. Unfortunately I can not. Hot and cold water applications in alternation are as useful as any local treatment can be.

Let the cold water run on the affected part for ten minutes by the watch. Then apply dry heat. Do this twice a day.

Build up the general health by simple food, fresh air and sunlight. In time there will be resistance enough to fight off the enemy.

Sometimes pus forms and when the swelling comes to a head the worm is expelled. Or it may be removed by surgical means.

With the Editors.

THE BIGGER BELL.

It must have been with envious admiration that the biggest assembly of bell-ringers ever held in England gathered at Croydon last month to hear the booming of the largest bell ever forged in their country. It is to have its permanent abode in the new Baptist church on Riverside drive, 300 feet above the Hudson.

It is not the biggest bell, though, as it is half as heavy again as Big Ben of the Westminster clock tower. There are still three or four that are bigger: the great bell in Moscow, which, up to the Bolshevik regime at any rate, was used as a chapel instead of a bell; the second Moscow bell, which is the largest bell that is still a bell; the eighty-one bell which hangs in a pagoda in Burma, and the Peiking bell of fifty-three tons. There are great bells in Nanking and Vienna approaching it in size, and there is the bell of Notre Dame, which will go on ringing whenever Victor Hugo is read, and the Great Peter at York Minster. America will now have a voice to match in depth and reach those from across the sea.

It is stated that its note will carry ten miles, and with the aid of the radio it should carry across the continent. It is even conceivable that in time the great bell of Peiking and the Big Ben of London and the mighty bell of Moscow, with the other great sister bells, and the carillon of Louvain, will be heard ringing synchronously in celebration of some world event. At the present meeting in England there was present one hale, bearded veteran bell-ringer, who rang the happy changes for Queen Victoria's jubilee and tolled her death. It will be the boast of players in this new age that their chimes were heard by millions and 10,000 miles away as well as by those near by. There are still those who may be amazed by those who have no ear for music but only a sense of regularity, and possible combination of sounds, may never come to monopolize the air. One who remembers a bell-ringing contest several years ago at Stoke Poges, near the churchyard scene of Gray's Elegy, has never been able since to get those endless permutations of sounds out of his ears. One ringer, it is said, rang a peal of 15,000 changes in nine hours.

When it is known that there are 40,000 ringers in England today, the question rises what will become of the practitioners of this art when electricity comes to take the place of the human arms—as it has already come to replace the swinging form of Quasimodo in the bell-towers of Notre Dame. It took "five sturdy bell-ringers several stout pulps" before they could get enough swing on a rope to ring "manually" the Bourdon bell that is to be worked electrically when it is in its place beside and high above the Hudson river. There is, by the way, one great bell in this city that has been voiceless for years because of the Anti-Noise Society's protest. Perhaps the city may yet find some high tower for it where it may, like wisdom, call to the sons of men.—New York Times.

MEDIEVAL CHICAGO.

Chicago finds it necessary to guard against bombing the homes of forty of its citizens, chiefly politicians in or out of office. For this state of affairs, the great mass of Chicago politicians have their own short-sightedness to blame.

Today the baron of gangland has his way, or else he dignifies in defense of what he has come to believe is a vested right.

Nor need we be amazed that he believes he has a vested right to do as he pleases. In a city where political leaders make open alliance with thugs where occupants of high office deem it an honor—as they have more than once—to foregather at an elaborate feast given in honor of some super-hero of the underworld, where even judges are not shocked when juries are intimidated into liberating "well connected" murderers, it is surprising to find that gangland's barons have come to think they own the town and all that is in it?

Kings in medieval Europe were continually getting themselves into the same predicament that now licks Chicago's politicians. Enlisting the aid of wandering scoundrels for their own purposes, they later found it next to impossible to get rid of the blackguards, or to keep them from doing as they pleased.

Chicago, in the twenty years since the outbreak of its first "gangland" war, has permitted the slow growth of a criminal feudalism that Chicago now finds not only dangerous in the extreme, but most difficult of eradication as well. There are evidences that the town at last is becoming genuinely alarmed, and that the alarm is now shared by men who formerly refused lightly into political alliances with the very ruffians who are making today's trouble.

Well, if Chicago eventually does become sufficiently alarmed to undertake a thorough house-cleaning, the present reign of terror will be worth several times its cost.—Minneapolis Journal.

Wilkes Land.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

Accompanying the announcement of Commander Byrd's planned flying expedition to the South pole and over the Antarctic continent, appended by scientists who will study the geography, geology, zoology, botany and meteorology of the most extensive and mysterious of the unexplored regions of the earth, there has been published a chart of the Antarctic continent, it is said, by the National Geographic Society.

It is especially at this interesting moment, when the special attention of all Americans is called to this bold enterprise—expected to bring so much credit to American science and the American name—shocks the informed reader who looks at it by the fact that, while it contains the names of all the kings, queens, emperors and other explorers whose cognomens have been attached to "lands" on the mysterious continent, it omits the one name that has a pointed significance for Americans—the name of Wilkes Land, which was bestowed in honor of Lieutenant—later Commodore—Charles Wilkes of the American navy, who commanded the first scientific exploration expedition ever sent out by the United States—1838-1842—and who excited the imagination of the world, and aroused the usual jealousy, by affirming that he had discovered an Antarctic continent. His ships were not very good for their purpose, some of his officers were not harmonious, but in spite of all difficulties he did, as later explorations have proved, actually skirt for long distances the ice-guarded coast of the great south polar land, catching sight of it here and there. He combined, in his mind, the scattered points that had been seen by a few others before him, and beheld in his pregnant imagination a vast white continent surrounding the southern extremity of the earth's axis. It was a vision that aroused an acrimonious controversy; but behind it stood a magnificent reality—the actual Antarctic continent. Wilkes was right; it was there where he said it was.

Read what the Encyclopedia Britannica prints from the pen of the English geographer, Hugh Robert Mill:

"It seems no more than due to a gallant and much-persecuted officer, who did his best in most difficult circumstances, to leave the name of Wilkes Land on the map of the region he explored."

Yet it seems that a map of the Antarctic continent can be prepared by our National Geographical society, from which this name is omitted although it contains a row of other names strung along the very coast where "Wilkes Land" should be seen. If we had a little more of the English spunk about such matters, we should not shoulder out our heroes in that way.

However, I am glad to see that in a recent publication by the American Geographical society on problems of polar research a map of the Antarctic continent is published on which Wilkes Land appears where it ought to be. Our department of state has never acquiesced in various suggestions made that this country should claim sovereignty over Wilkes Land although the discoverer of the Wilkes expedition, which was official in the strict sense, having been authorized by act of congress of May 18, 1838.—Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. MINTYRE.

New York, April 2.—It would seem that only a volume of Horatio Alger, Jr., is the romance of the ferries preserved. The ferry-boat is about the only thing about New York that never changes—a solitary link between now and days ago.

All day and far into the night they nose in and out of their slips, sturdy, plodding and reliable. There is seldom a ferry accident, save in a while one gets lost in the fog and moves with a semi-tragic humor out toward the sea, but gallant tug always come to her rescue.

Their skippers are wind-blown mariners who know every inch of the harbor and spend their lives in the shadow of the monstrously known by poets as New York's beautiful skyline. They are not at all envious of masters of big transatlantic vessels about them.

The ferry has plenty of excitement. Now and then a forlorn soul slips over the side to be dragged out and saved by a pulmoner. A fleeing criminal is tapped on the shoulder. Young lovers whisper the old story. Babies have been born on the crude benches.

And the faded two-men orchestras of a harp and violin try rather pathetically to brighten the trip grinding out "In the Good Old Summer Time" and "Sweet Rosie O'Grady." And are perfectly content with the few vagrant pennies pitched into their caps.

The industrious little shoe-shiners are attacking every pair of feet—five cents for a rub off and a dime for a shine. The prices are three and five cents. Several voices that have cried "Shine, Sir" have been heard in legislative halls.

The experienced ferry crosser is a constant deck walker—round and round he goes in the clean, tawny air getting glimpses of the sea, Miss Liberty, the cowering Jersey hills, Ellis island, the metropolis and the endless variety of river craft.

Times square is to have a new 1,000-room hotel that will cater as much to New Yorkers as transients. It is the notion of the proprietor the throbbing heart of the city has just as attractive to natives as to visitors, if they can have home-like comforts. He proposes to see they have them. For some time there has been a trend from the suburbs back to the city and the experiment is watched with interest. Suburban wives especially are rebelling at what they call the monotony of their isolation and husbands are losing enthusiasm for commuting. Six other new hotels are going up in the Times square section.

Stage jokes are often born of grim reality. In a musical comedy a safe-blower is asked how he came to be one and replied: "I started stealing milk bottles and just worked my way up." That was the actual statement of a

SIGNED CONFESSIONS OBTAINED BY POLICE

Two Men and Girl Will Be Arraigned on Robbery Charge

Statements admitting their parts in the robbery of the Groceries store on Silver-st. last night have been given by Leonard Brooks, 18, Paul Johnson, 27, and Margaret Eselman, 20, as announced by Police Prosecutor Patton this morning.

Brooks and the girl were arrested at Silver-st. early yesterday morning on information given by Brooks during his arrest at the Malo Junk shop at 11:15 Sunday night where he was seen by a nightwatchman that he was attempting to steal junk.

When questioned at police headquarters Sunday night, Brooks who first gave the name as Arthur Jackson, admitted the robbery that he, with Johnson, had robbed the McDaniels grocery on Friday night of groceries valued at $100, officials said.

Practically all of the groceries were taken by the police at the house which was occupied by Stutzler and the McDaniels girl.

In her statement to the police, the girl said she had been living with Brooks for the past two years. She said she was not told of the intentions of the store until late Friday night. After leaving the house, about 11:15, she said the two men returned a few minutes later for matches and a flash light. An hour and one-half later she said they returned with the groceries which they concealed in various parts of the house.

The statements of the two men were much the same, except that Stutzler and Brooks accompanied him through the basement window into the store, while Brooks in his statement says the other man crawled through a basement window alone and opened the back door of the store. The groceries were carried away in sacks.

The three, it is expected, will be arraigned before Municipal Judge William R. Martin this afternoon or Wednesday morning.

Kenton, April 3.—William Shanks, 52, elder of the First Presbyterian Church, Ada, and former Kenton mail carrier, ended his life Sunday by hanging in the barn of his uncle, John Shanks, west of the city. Illness resulting from financial worry is believed to have led to the act of self destruction.

Mrs. Shanks said that her husband arose early without disturbing her. He drove his auto to the home of his uncle, which is a mile north of his own farm. The body was discovered by Milo Cronbaugh, a tenant, who first noticed the car standing near John Shanks' barn.

Mr. Shanks had always been active in church affairs in Ada until lately, when he became ill.

SCHOOL GIRL SLAIN RESISTING ATTACK

Authorities Seek Motorist Who Approached Other Children at Same School

Cleveland, April 3.—Working on the theory that Alice Leonard, 15-year-old school girl, met death while resisting an attack, police and county authorities today were seeking a motorist who is said to have approached several school mates of the girl whose body was found yesterday in a field near Mayfield Heights School, after she had been missing for more than two months.

The Leonard girl was last reported seen in the evening of Jan. 28, last, when she started for a basketball game. Investigators advanced the belief that she had accepted an offer of "lift" of a passing motorist, possibly a "gas hawk," and afterward, becoming frightened had either leaped or was thrown from the moving car, striking her head on the pavement. The motorist then picked up the body and carried it into the field, according to this belief.

Coroner A. J. Pearce said the girl had been killed by a blow which crushed the right side of her skull. The girl since the evening of her disappearance, police declared. Her body was discovered by Bernard Perk, 17, high school student, who, with several companions, was engaging in baseball practice. Face upward, and fully clothed, although her hat and coat were missing, the body lay in weeds which had been crushed down and matted by rain and sleet.

EYE CONFERENCE

Farm Bloc Leaders Fear Perfect Harmony To Be Disrupted

Washington, April 3.—The farm bloc leaders of the new compromise $250,000,000 McNary-Haugen bill today cast wary eyes on the corn belt conference being held at Des Moines, Ia. The perfect harmony, with which farm organizations swarmed to support of the McNary-Haugen bill, was reported threatened by the Des Moines conference. Some delegates to this session were said to be opposed to the new compromise bill, because it carried a "government loan" provision as a substitute for the equalization fee. The western farm groups were said to favor a battle to the finish for the old McNary-Haugen bill, which imposed the equalization fee and government marketing of surplus crops, as soon as any crop prices declined.

DECREE IS CHANGED IN LAUCHER ACTION

Mother Given Full Custody of Children Under Ruling by Judge Scofield

The decree placing the custody of their two children with the mother, Verma F. Laucher, during the school term and the father, Edward Laucher, during vacation months has been modified, giving the mother complete custody of the children. The decree was modified today on the order of Judge George H. Scofield of the Common Pleas Court.

In modifying the former decree the father was given the right to visit the children at any reasonable time.

A divorce decree originally sought by Mrs. Laucher against her husband was denied by the Common Pleas Court. The mother, however, was given custody of the children during the school term. The verdict of the Common Pleas Court was subsequently appealed by Mrs. Laucher to the Court of Appeals but the lower court decree was sustained.

Claiming that the children had grown accustomed to the present home, the mother sought permanent custody.

Charging in her petition that her husband, Charles T. Wheaton, never provided her with a home and that she had been forced to work a large part of the time since their marriage in 1920, Alice M. Wheaton has filed suit for divorce in Common Pleas Court. The couple was married in Columbus, Aug. 10, 1920. They have one daughter, Doris, aged six.

Sues for $140
Charles M. Cookson has filed a petition in Common Pleas Court to collect $140 and interest since Nov. 13, 1926, which he alleges is due on a horse sold to Walter Jones on that date. Cookson says in his petition that he delivered the horse to Jones at the Charles Likins farm two days after the sale. Since that time, he claims, the defendant has failed to pay for the horse.

ELLES APPEAL

Zebulon Stout, proprietor of the Stout Used Car Co., has appealed the verdict of the Municipal Court in which a $75 judgment was returned against him in the suit brought by John Watts. ## LODGES SET APRIL 30 AS DATE FOR CONSOLIDATION

Plans for the consolidation of Kuksusko and Wayside lodges of Odd Fellows were considered at a meeting held by the former lodge last night. Encouragement No. 50 of Kuksusko lodge will confer the golden rule degree tonight.

BODY IDENTIFIED

Alliance Auto Dealer Burns To Death in Mysterious Blaze

Mt. Vernon, April 3.—The body of a man found near here in an auto destroyed by fire today had been identified as that of Clarence Mather, 50, Alliance auto dealer and garage owner. The identification was made by Eater Fendrick, Mather's partner.

Investigators so far have been unable to determine the cause of the fire or of Mather's death. The burning auto was first seen Sunday night, along the road near here, by Ross Mowry of Mt. Vernon, who reported the incident to the sheriff.

When an investigation was made, the charred body of Mather was found in the rear seat of the car. An empty gallon can was also found in the car. The small screen top of the car was found in the road near the scene of the fire.

The manner of Mather's death or circumstances of the fire were not reported on by the Knox County coroner, although the body was released for burial last night.

SENATE'S CONDITION PLAYED BY COPELAND

Declares Chamber Is Sending Own Members to Death; Foul Air Is Blamed

Washington, April 3.—The United States Senate, which attempts to look after the welfare of 120,000,000 people, is sending its own members to their deaths because it won't provide decent working conditions for them, Senator Copeland, Democrat, of New York, noted health specialist, told International News Service today.

Copeland attributes the tragic death of Senator Frank B. Willis partly to the foul air of the present chamber. The deaths of Senator Jones, Democrat, of New Mexico, and Ferris, Democrat, of Michigan, this session, were also due to the close confinement of the chamber, he said.

The New Yorker is the author of a bill to remodel the chamber, moving it to the north wall of the capitol and cutting three 20-foot windows stretching from the floor to the ceiling. The work would cost approximately half a million dollars, according to estimates.

PROBE EXPLOSION

Night Men Die in Blast, 375 Escape Through Shaft

Blindfold, W. Va., April 3.—Investigation into the cause of the mine explosion in the No. 2 operation of the Keystone Coal & Coke Co., which snuffed out the lives of seven miners and a company mine inspector, was begun today by R. M. Lambie, chief of the State Department of Mines.

The dead were removed late last night from the vicinity of the No. 31 entry. Lambie said most of the 275 miners at work at the time of the blast had made their way to safety through an air entry on Pinnacle Creek, five and one-half miles from the main entry, which was only cut through the mountain late last fall. Because of the long distance the men had to walk over the rugged mountains back to the main office, much difficulty was experienced in accounting for them.

COURT ORDER KEEPS REMUS IN HOSPITAL

Legal Maneuvering Results in Stay of Execution of Appellate Decision

Lima, April 3.—George Remus, bookkeeper, lawyer and self-styled, still languished in the state asylum here today, four days after the court of appeals had ordered his release. Legal maneuvering, the factor which delayed Remus' trial after he had shot his wife, Inogene, in Cincinnati, and resulted in his acquittal on insanity grounds, will apparently keep him in the asylum, where he has been confined since the first of the year, for an indefinite period despite the fact that he has been ordered dismissed.

Yesterday afternoon, Assistant Attorney General L. C. Davis arrived here after a speedy motor trip from Columbus with a stay of execution, signed by Chief Justice C. T. Marshall, of the Ohio Supreme Court, to prevent Remus' release. Attorney General Edward C. Turner had announced in Columbus that a petition in error would be filed, challenging the appellate court's jurisdiction in the matter, and contending that its decision, ordering Remus released, is not supported by the evidence.

The motion for a stay of execution declares that Remus has "dangerous and homicidal tendencies" and that his release would be to the detriment of the public welfare. It asks that he continue to be kept in the custody of Dr. W. N. Voreau, superintendent of the Lima State Hospital. The matter will probably next be heard by the Ohio Supreme court.

ENGLERT FUNERAL PLANS COMPLETED

Funeral services for Peter H. Englert, who died yesterday morning at City Hospital, will be held at the M. H. Gandy Funeral Home, W. Center-st., at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon, with Rev. Earl L. Holliday, pastor of Emmanuel Baptist Church, in charge. Burial will be in Marion Cemetery. The body will be viewed at the funeral home at any time from now until the funeral hour.

YALE CLAIMS TITLE AFTER EVEN MATCH

Michigan Swimmers Defeated in Carnegie Pool; Relay Decides Meet

New Haven, Conn., April 2.—Yale's undefeated swimming team was hailed as the college champion of the United States today as a result of its 20 to 23 victory over Michigan, Big Ten champion, in Carnegie pool last night.

Michigan lost the meet by a 10-10 tie in the deciding event. Captain House, anchor man, won this event for the Yale.

Michigan's only first place was taken by Garnet Ault, who cut seven seconds from the intercollegiate record for the 440-yard swim by winning the event in 5:01.25. The Wolverines kept in the running by taking second place in all the other events.

Danny Dunn Expected To Confer with Fugazy for Bout in Brooklyn

Cleveland, April 3.—Danny Dunn, manager of John Risko, Cleveland heavyweight contender for Gene Tunney's title, was to leave Cleveland today for New York, presumably for a conference with Propagator Humbert Fugazy.

"Fugazy wants Risko for a Brooklyn fight," Dunn replied in answer to questions regarding his second trip east within two weeks. "I might talk to him while I'm in New York."

Dunn said he had several offers for Risko's services, including one from "Jim" Mullen, of Chicago, for a bout in July.

Way of the transgressor is hard. However, he never lacks for company.

STATE TRACK TEAM IMPROVED BY ANSON

Prospect Jumper Back on Ohio Squad Again After Long Layoff

Columbus, April 3.—With the return of Pete Anson, athlete of Prospect, and other former negligible stars to its roster, the Ohio State University track squad will enter the spring competition with a team which, in the opinion of Coach Frank Castleman, is one of the strongest to wear the Buckeye uniform for several years.

Indisizibility caused by low scholarship average during the first quarter term of school last fall was responsible for the loss of several of the trackmen of former years. Anson, although not ineligible because of grades, was out of school since his work on the team in the 1926 season.

Without Anson and other stars including Howard Kriss, one of the greatest dash men of the country and Charles B. Coffey, high jumper of Salem, the Buckeye squad failed to equal the records of previous seasons in the indoor meets in the winter quarter just completed.

Anson first broke into the collegiate limelight when he tied Burg of Chicago in the high jump of the 1926 Big Ten meet. Following that meet, the Prospect youth dropped out of school and returned about three months ago. He took second place in the relay meet at Texas two weeks ago with 6 feet, 2 inches. In practices this year, Anson has reached 6 feet 5 inches.

With Anson and Coffey entered the high jump will be one of Ohio's strongest events this year, coaches believe.

Opening Practice Session Set For Sunday by Bacon

Baseball Candidates To Report at Lincoln Park for First Workout of Season; Initial Game To Be Played on May 6

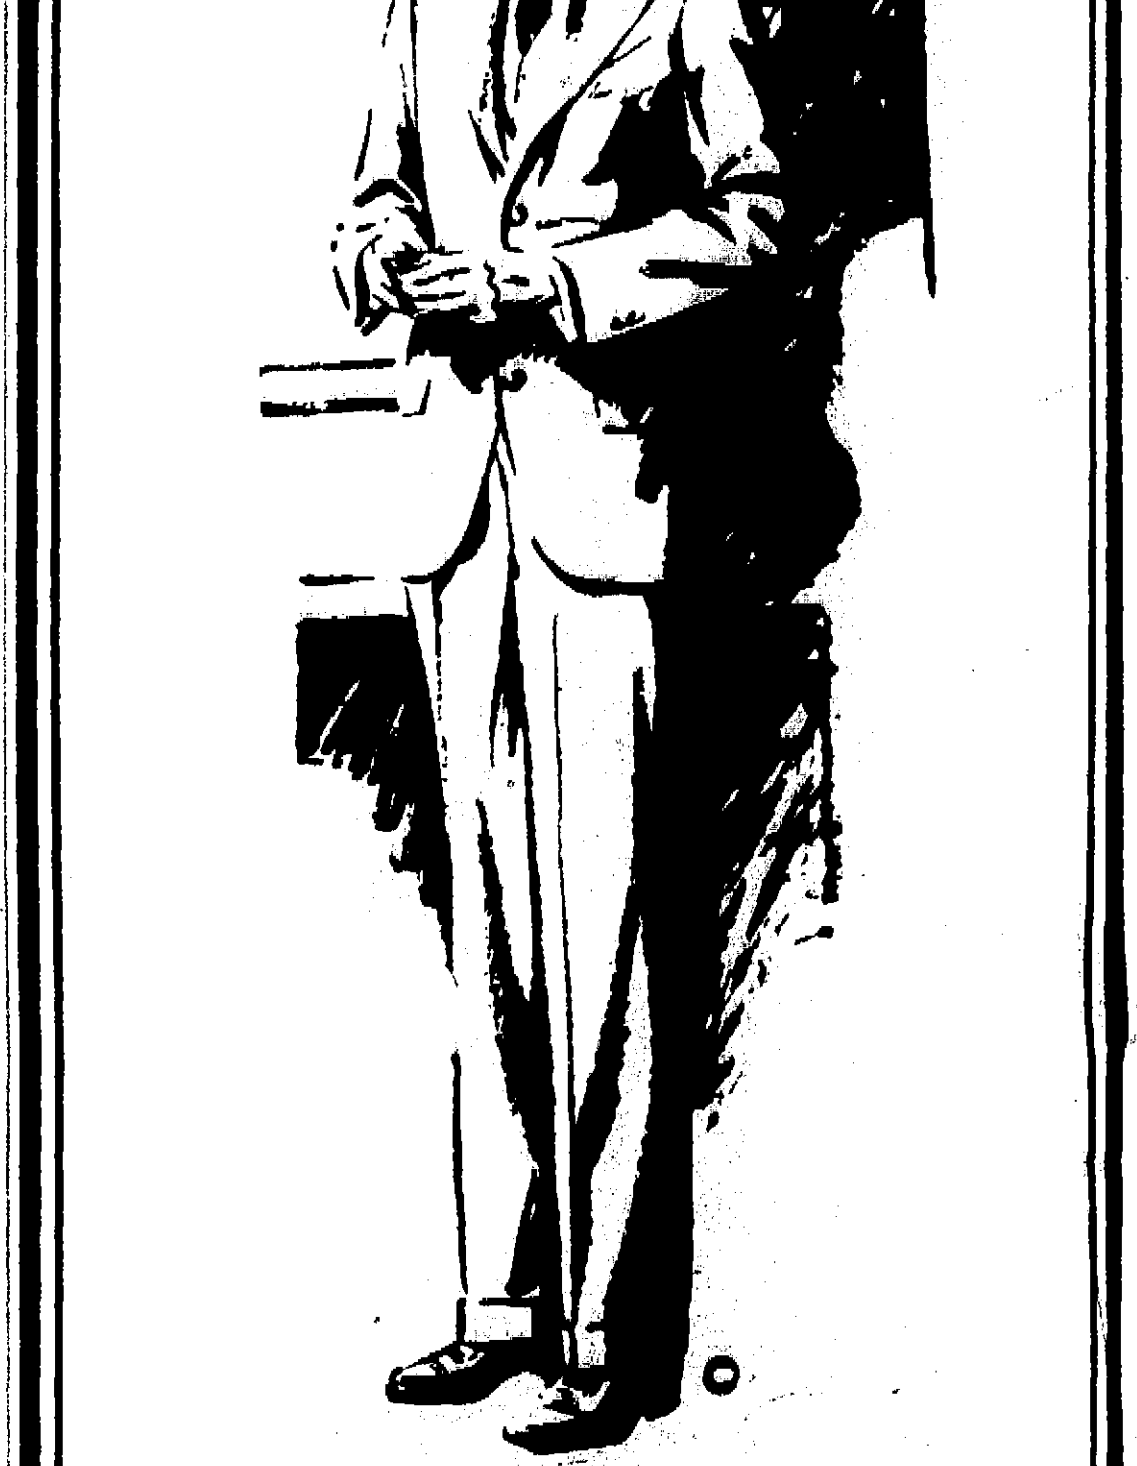

Play ball.
No, the baseball season is not to open in Marion at the present time, but Manager Francis Bacon of the Marion Eagles is making his first call for diamond candidates.

Those husky youngsters whose hands have been itching for the feel of the ash and leather will get their first chance of the season next Sunday to try out for Marion's representative team at Lincoln Park.

Not only have the youngsters and those new to the game been invited, but an invitation has also been extended to the veterans who have successfully weathered many a battle.

In other words, Manager Bacon is urging every Marion ball player to report Sunday afternoon when kicks will be worked out of stiff muscles.

The ball season will open here on May 6 with the first opponents for the locals not yet named. But one team has been lined up for the season. That is the Homestead Grays on June 11. That great colored aggregation will be just a sample of the offerings promised this season by the Eagles management, it was announced.

Fugazy Promises Second Tunney Fight Next September

More Elimination Bouts Threatened To Pick Opponent

Gene To Battle Two Men and to Date None Worthy of Fight Exist; Champion Must Notify Commission of First Selection

BY DAVIS J. WALSH
New York, April 3.—The old story of Gene Tunney finding two opponents where exactly none were supposed to exist bobbed up again today as new plans to further complicate the situation that in nowise had been clarified by the recent announcement that Tunney would fight twice and that he meant to play ball with the man who would get the champion for his second fight.

Sharkey Signed
Sharkey already is said to be signed with Richard for the Delaney match but he can get out from under it if he so desires, on the precedent set by the commission in declaring that it takes two names to make a contract. Fugazy, they say, will line up with Sharkey and Delaney within a week and that he plans to start them out from opposite corners during the early outdoor season, with Ebbets Field as the locale.

Must Tell Commission
Tunney to wire his acceptance of Heeny as the challenger to the New York Commission, which must be tendered to because the Tunney-Heeny enterprise will be held in this city. The commission, they say, will declare Tunney null or void or both if he doesn't come through at the appointed hour and he was so informed over the long distance telephone yesterday.

Jack Dempsey is Far From "Broke" Check of Ex-Champ's Property, Earnings Reveals

BY FRANK G. MENKE

A PUBLICATION stated in most serious fashion the other day that "Jack Dempsey will not fight again" and in another column it declared that Jack was down to his last $100,000.

The statements contradict in tragic manner.

If Dempsey had only $100,000 of the vast fortune he has earned since he became champion, it's a copper riveted clutch that he'd grab at any reasonable offer for another fight. The fact that he isn't growing excited about fighting again indicates rather conclusively that he's possessed of a million or more.

In 1927 Dempsey grossed over $700,000 and in 1928 he picked up over $700,000. That's $1,400,000 in less than two years. Even before then Dempsey had a fairish lot of cash stowed away—or had negotiable assets in his name.

Owns Valuable Real Estate
As things stack up now Dempsey has a hotel in Los Angeles worth $700,000. It's value is increasing inasmuch as it is right in the line of real estate progress. He has a home that he can cash in for $100,000. He has $200,000 in an annuity. That's a grand total of $1,000,000 right there.

And Dempsey has some loose cash, he has a $150,000 interest in Madison Square Garden and he has a monthly income from various sources that nets him perhaps $2,500.

So the wolves, if they elect to howl on his front porch, will howl in vain.

The "Utah Mailer" has piled up earnings beyond any fighter in history—and a total beyond that of any half dozen men of ringdom. Dempsey has picked up more than Sullivan, Corbett, Jeffries, Fitz, Johnson and Tunney put together. Started With $27,500

Starting with $27,500 for knocking off Willard, he got $55,000 for the Mishe fight, $100,000 with Brennan, $300,000 with Carpenter, $285,000 with Gibbons, $700,000 with Firpo, $710,000 with Tunney, $318,000 with Sharkey and $375,000 for his second crack at Tunney.

With his net alone he has made over $2,630,000 in nine battles—an average of nearly $300,000 per outing.

But he has earned almost as much—if not more in "side issue" things. He has been an inveterate cravatite and exhibition tours; he was with a circus; he made several moving pictures and here and there picked up from

LONE STAR STATE URGES RUNNERS ON

Andrew Payne Expected To Warm Things Up for Leading Marathoner

Turkey, N. W., April 3.—The Lone Star State was the beacon that lured C. C. Pyle's legion belouins today as they pushed 40 miles to Glenrio, the last encampment in New Mexico today.

While Arno Sumner, Detroit marathoner, headed the van with a elapsed time of 177:48:45 for the 1,070.6 miles from Los Angeles to Tucuman, the pack was at his heels and daily cutting down his margin. Andrew Payne, 21-year-old Oklahoman, was regarded as one of the prime favorites as the Pyle caravan neared the land of oil wells and wealthy Indians.

"I'm nearing the home country," Payne said, "and naturally the folks will expect me to do my stuff."

Dempsey's earnings. Budget $11,000,000 for Keweenaw and chip off another $1,000,000 for taxes and expenses. That leaves $2,000,000 for Dempsey to account for. He can account for about $1,200,000 by having it on hand. The rest of it is gone.

Any man who spends over $1,000,000 in less than ten years is rather "broke." Dempsey has been that. But as careful as he has been he still has been sufficiently careful to save enough to keep him in comfort for the next 40 years. And that's long enough.

When Food Sours

Sweeten the stomach—Instantly

About two hours after eating many people suffer from sour stomachs. They call it indigestion. It means that the stomach nerves have been overstimulated. There is excess acid. The way to correct it is with an alkali, which neutralizes many times its volume in acid.

It is the quick method. Results come almost instantly. It is the approved method. You will never use another when you know.

He sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 60 years in correcting excess acids, 25c and 50c a bottle—any drugstore.

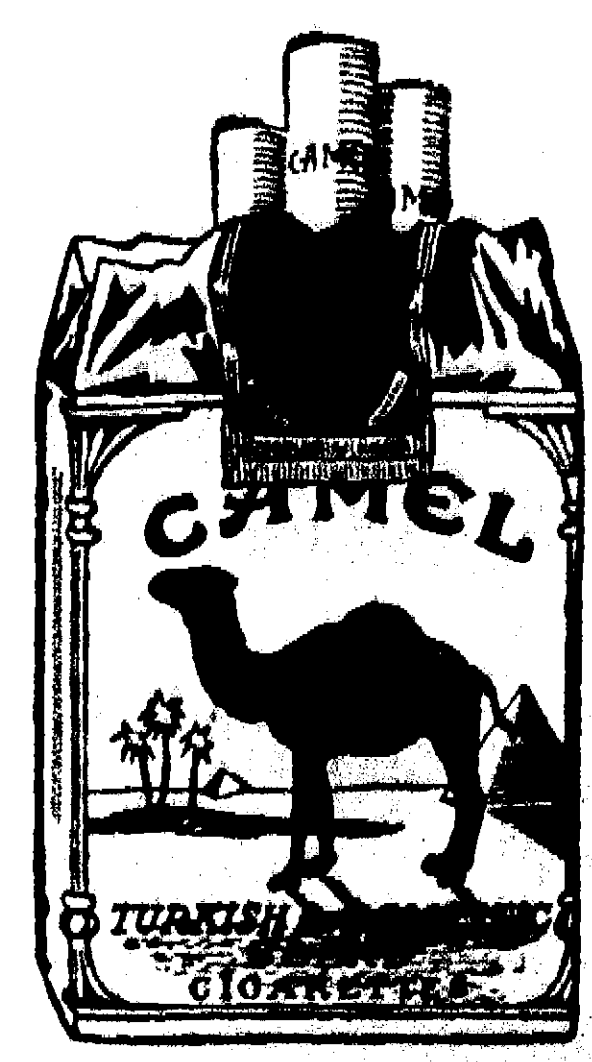

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the water. It is pleasant, efficient and harmless. It has remained the standard with physicians in the 60 years since its invention.

COMMITTEES PLAN FOR SCHOOL EVENT

Annual Junior-Senior Banquet To Be Held on May 29

Plans are being made by Harding High School juniors for the annual dinner-dance, known as the "Junior-Senior banquet" at which juniors entertain seniors shortly before graduation each spring. The dinner and dance will be given at the Star Auditorium Tuesday night, May 29.

During the dinner hour, when John Waddell, junior class president, will preside as toastmaster, there will be short talks by several members of the faculty and representative students. Dancing will follow. The hall will be appropriately decorated with the school and class colors.

Arrangements for the party are in charge of John Waddell and the following committees appointed this week by Mr. Waddell: music, Mary Jenkins, Paula Bain, Dorothy Bush, Harry Dorsey and Julian Walker; menu, Jane Gutherie; Sue McCurdy, Katherine Zachman, William Hoffmeyer and Richard McAninch; decorating, Margaret Reese, Mary Wires, James Bull, Emerson Russell and Howard Bailey; program, Frederick Merchant, Evelyn Bachelder, Jane Smith, Page Zuppan and John Artopoulos; finance, James Reed, Jane Bradley, Ann Schoenhardt and Elizabeth Staker; invitation, Alice Wilson, Lenore Bondley, Margaret Forrey and Jane Canterbury; and reception, Mary Jo Stafford, Edgar Hastings, Helen French and Mildred Duffey.

MOUSER COMMENTS ON FREMONT RATE

Assails Mayor's Reasons for Signing New Gas Ordinance

Reasons given by Lester J. Connors, mayor of Fremont, for having signed the new gas rate ordinance recently adopted for that city, are assailed by Grant E. Mouser Jr. of the attorney general's office in a statement issued for publication today.

The statement, he announces, is issued in response to a special request from a Fremont newspaper which has been fighting the new rate schedule. Mouser, former local city solicitor, is Marion's representative in the fight being carried on by a group of Ohio cities against rate increases sought by the Logan Gas Co.

"Mayor Connors states that the gas company has been only paying to stockholders a five per cent dividend," Mouser says in his statement. "What particular official of the gas company told him this? And how does he know that the Logan Gas Co. has not padded its operating expenses to show a small return for the purposes of the rate case?"

Hints at Misrepresentation
"In conclusion," the Marion attorney states toward the close of his comments, which cover several typewritten pages, "it is submitted that, in the minds of any reasonable man who is unbiased and

ACTRESS DIES

Georgia O'Raney Taken Suddenly; Native of Mansfield
New Haven, Conn., April 3.—An actress was performed today upon the body of Miss Georgia O'Raney, noted stage actress who died suddenly here last night just before the production, "Nine Girls," of which she was the star, was scheduled to open.

Heart disease is believed to have been the cause of death. Miss O'Raney, who in private life was Mrs. Robert B. Griffin, was 42. She complained of feeling ill when the company arrived here and died shortly after a physician had been summoned. She had been working hard in rehearsals.

Miss O'Raney was born in Mansfield, Ohio, and attended Oberlin College. She appeared in vaudeville in 1905, made her stage debut in San Francisco a year later and came east in 1907.

End Dandruff

Begin Early

Dermatologists tell us that many serious cases of dandruff and falling hair could have been prevented by simple, early treatment. If you have any evidence of dandruff, go after it with Listerine, the safe antiseptic. It has checked this humiliating condition for tens of thousands. You simply douse it on full strength and massage the scalp vigorously. Don't expect results over night. Keep it up systematically. Within ten days you ought to see a real improvement. Lambert Pharmaceutical Co., St. Louis, Mo.
